TOLEDO, CHICAGO INTERCEPT S O S

One Station Declares It
Talked To Lost Fliers 10 Minutes; Four Days of Anxiety Relieved.

Chicago, August 24.—(P)—Amateur radio station 9 CEJ, operated by E. J. Harris, Chicago, said at 12:35 a. m., Chicago day, light saving time today that he was in communication with the plane Greater Rockford, missing on the Cochrane, Ont., to Mt. Evans, Greenland flight since Sunday morning.

Toledo, Ohio, August 23.—(P)—A long message purported to have come from the crew of the Greater Rockford was received tonight by Joseph E. Williams, an amateur radio operator, who declares he was in direct communication with the crew for ten minutes. The crew said, according to Williams:

"We are stranded on small island, 100 miles north of Newfoundland. We are Rockford to Sweden fliers. We need assistance badly. Please do all your power to get help to us."

Williams then said he conversed with a member of the crew and in reply to a further question said, "Just say we are safe and well."

Then Williams stated the message was garbled and all he was able to catch was "because we haven't had any deer meat since yesterday."

The communication ended, Williams stated, with "Have been trying to get in touch with some station all night. Please hurry."

Williams declared the message was received on a wave length of 42 meters at his station.

Julianhaab, Greenland, August 23. (United News).—A crisp wireless message, flashed along the coast of Greenland today, brought fresh hope that Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, who were attempting a flight from Rockford, Ill., to Stockholm, Sweden, are safe in some remote spot on the Greenland coast.

The message came from Honore Petersen, governor of South Greenland, and related the news that the entire population of two Greenland villages had seen an airplane flying overhead Sunday morning. The time they gave was 10:30 a. m., which was about the time Hassell and Cramer had hoped to land at Mount Evans, 350 or 400 miles further north.

Petersen's message stated the inhabitants were positive in their information and had described the scene in great detail, including the fact they had seen the aviators peering over the sides of their plane through binoculars.

HOOVER SPEEDS TO WASHINGTON

G. O. P. Candidate Ends
Visit to Old Home and Heads East To Pursue
Campaign.

Hoover Train En Route to Washington, August 23.—(P)—Heartened by the loyal enthusiasm shown by thousands of Iowans during his three-day stay in his native state, Herbert Hoover tonight was on the last lap of his transcontinental journey to Washington, where he will establish his personal headquarters for the campaign.

Before boarding his special train at Cedar Rapids he issued a statement thanking the people of Iowa for the kindly reception given to both himself and Mrs. Hoover in the state of the tall corn.

"It is a great experience to have had the welcome of one's birthplace that Mrs. Hoover and I have had in the last few days," he said. "It brings out vividly the ties which have attached our lives to the state of Iowa and we leave it most regretfully. We will long remember with gratitude the kindly expressions and good wishes we have had on every side."

The republican presidential candidate's last day in Cedar Rapids was given over to further conferences with farm and political leaders, during which he received supplemental reports as to the political outlook in the great grain states, both west and east of the Mississippi.

Summarizing these reports, James W. Good, western campaign manager, said he believed Hoover would succeed in the northwest, but conceded that the situations of Minnesota and Wisconsin were not as satisfactory at this time as he would like to see them. "It looks to me also as if Governor Smith is in a fight with the American Legion," Good continued, making this prediction upon the democratic nomination.

AUSTRIAN CONCERN ORDERS $500,000 GOODS IN ATLANTA

Export orders amounting to over a half million dollars with a single firm in Austria and early prospects of over double this is the record cited by one Atlanta firm making an aggressive bid for foreign trade, according to Robert Hecht, president of the International corporation and an active member of the Atlanta Foreign Trade club.

The firm to which Mr. Hecht referred is that of Bunzl & Blich of Vienna, one of the largest in central Europe, employing nearly 2,000 people in the manufacture of textiles and paper products.

Walter Kolmar, general manager of this firm, was a recent visitor to Atlanta, the guest of Mr. Hecht at the Biltmore hotel. Mr. Kolmar was here primarily for the purpose of studying textile conditions and stimulating direct trading relations with Austria.

SMITH'S SPEECH TO BE LANDMARK IN PROHIBITION

Sullivan Analyzes Candidate's Stand and Recommendations on This Outstanding Issue.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, August 23.—In a sense that not all may recognize at once, Governor Smith's speech is a historic landmark in prohibition. The maximum and ultimate of the changes he proposes is that state governments be permitted to manufacture and sell liquor "the sale to be made only by the state itself." This is the proposal of the outstanding wet leader in the United States. It means that there is no important political leader and no political party in America which demands that liquor be manufactured and sold by private interests for profit. Stated in other words, it means that both political parties, and all important political leaders, agree that the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages by private interests for profit is and forever shall be banned in America.

Even if Governor Smith should be elected, and even if his complete program should be carried into effect, the acceptance of this stipulation would remain as an immense net gain in the long fight against liquor. Even if the present prohibition away from prohibition should go its extreme length, this net gain would remain as the point from which the next swing in the long fight against liquor. Even if the present prohibition away from prohibition should go its extreme length, this net gain would remain as the point from which the next swing in the long fight against liquor.

The common judgment is that the outstanding feature of Governor Smith's speech is his stand on prohibition. It is a stand which is equally common judgment of politicians is that in this Governor Smith has been wise. His greatest chance to win the election lies in aiming to carry New York state and the eastern states close by. For this purpose his best appeal is the wet one that he makes. In making his wet appeal to the east, he alienates much of the west. One of the immediate consequences of the speech will be a number of announcements from the west, because persons who will say they cannot support Smith—but these have already been made. These are, not to any extent, democratic leaders. Their defection may or may not have important consequences in the election. Many of them have already practically made up their minds, because of Smith's previous record about prohibition.

To some of the most ardent wets, Governor Smith's speech, when understood, will be disappointing. Some of the most determined wet voters are the least informed. Not a few of these have been thinking vaguely that the sale of intoxicating liquor would be legalized soon after Governor Smith's inauguration, or at least during his administration.

Actually, Governor Smith's program holds out no such promise and does not pretend to. The only "immediate relief" he proposes is a change in the Volstead act. The act at present forbids the sale of any beverage containing more than one-half of 1 per cent alcohol. The change proposed by Governor Smith would raise "one-half of 1 per cent" to some higher figure, but as long as the 18th amendment lasts the higher figure could not be more than 3 or 4 per cent at the extreme outside. It could not be high enough to be "intoxicating" so long as that word remains in the constitution.

In short, the immediate "relief" which Governor Smith proposes would be a change in the Volstead act. The act at present forbids the sale of any beverage containing more than one-half of 1 per cent alcohol. The change proposed by Governor Smith would raise "one-half of 1 per cent" to some higher figure, but as long as the 18th amendment lasts the higher figure could not be more than 3 or 4 per cent at the extreme outside. It could not be high enough to be "intoxicating" so long as that word remains in the constitution.

The letter, signed by George R. Ross, chief of the division of markets, calls for immediate action by growers, and urges governors of Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Arkansas and Tennessee to appoint representatives of their states.

Senator Robinson Speaks in Atlanta On September 14

FIGURES ON FARM BUREAU EXPLAINED

Auditor Reveals Situation on Agricultural Department Costs, But Stays Out of Controversy.

Sam J. Slate, state auditor, in a statement issued Thursday declared that he has been drawn into the controversy over the expenses of the operation of the state department of agriculture by the two candidates for this position and declared that he has refused and still refuses to become a participant in this heated campaign.

Mr. Slate sets forth in detail figures he compiled covering the operation of the state department under J. J. Brown for the first six months of 1927 and also lists the treasury withdrawals of Commissioner Eugene Talmadge for the first six months of 1928. He stated that he had compiled this information at the request of J. F. Carroll, Atlanta, R. F. D. No. 3, and makes public the reply to Mr. Carroll and his own reply to the letter.

In his statement Mr. Slate declared that no audit has been made of the state department of agriculture books and said he would personally not favor the making of an audit during a heated political campaign. Mr. Slate said Commissioner Talmadge published certain figures in a letter to Mr. Carroll and invited all those who wished to verify them to write to the auditor. He said Mr. Adams, in using the figures contained in the Slate letter to Mr. Carroll, should have simply printed Mr. Carroll's letter and the reply of the state auditor rather than to have drawn "inferences" from the information contained in this letter.

Mr. Slate's statement follows: "The public unfortunately for me, both candidates for commissioner of agriculture have tried to place upon me the responsibility for their figures and statements in a heated political campaign and into which I have refused and still refuse to be a participant."

Mr. Talmadge published certain figures relative to his office and invited all those who wished to verify them to write to me. Mr. Talmadge evidently overlooked the partisanship and enmity of a political campaign. By invitation he asked these people to write me and they did. I knew that sooner or later these letters would be published and I tried to make them as concise as possible. Mr. Carroll wrote me from East Atlanta and I answered his letter, and I do think it would have been much better for Mr. Adams to have published Mr. Carroll's letter and my reply and let the people of Georgia draw their conclusions, than to draw inferences from the letter and make me in the public mind responsible for inferences. I will publish the correspondence but I ask that these facts be considered. I detailed each division of the department of agriculture and showed in detail the expenses during Mr. Brown's administration for the first six months of 1927.

Workman Found Dead Beside Boiler; Electric Drill Had Short-Circuited Through Hand.

A. H. Davis, 28, a tinner of a Washington street, East Point address, was almost instantly killed about 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon when he sustained an electrical shock while at work in the Russell High school building, East Point.

According to fellow workmen Davis had been working on a steel boiler with an electric drill and in some way a short circuit was caused, the electricity passing through his hand. No one was near at the time and he was found on the floor later with his right hand and arm burned.

An ambulance was summoned from A. C. Hemperley company while efforts were made to resuscitate the unconscious man. He was rushed to Grady hospital but was pronounced dead upon arrival.

The body was taken to the Howard Carmichael undertaking establishment and funeral services will be announced later.

Tallahassee, Fla., August 23.—(P)—At the invitation of the state democratic executive committee, Governor John W. Martin will introduce Senator George to the democrats of Hillsborough county Saturday night. The executive telegraphed his acceptance to C. J. Hardee, chairman of the Hillsborough county executive committee, tonight.

"Will be pleased to introduce Senator George to the democrats of Hillsborough county Saturday night," Governor Martin wired. He will leave here tomorrow noon for Tampa.

FACTS REVEALED IN PARK PROBE

High lights of evidence presented in the probe of the councilmanic investigation committee inquiring into the purchase of the 429-acre tract for park purposes, show the following:

That the Perkins heirs agreed by a signed statement to pay a commission of $20,000 to J. A. Smith for the sale of the Perkins tract to the city for park purposes.

That J. A. Smith then associated Sam P. Cronheim with him as real estate agent and also Charles M. Ford, the agreement being to split the commission among the three parties after all expenses had been paid.

Both Smith and Cronheim testified that this agreement was made some time in July or August of last year, while Ford was a member of council, and that it was in writing and each received a copy, both of which copies were lost or misplaced.

The contract in question was presented to the committee at the final hearing by counsel for Cronheim. It showed that it had been signed August 1, 1927, at which time Ford was a member of city council.

Ford, prior to presentation of the contract denied that any specific agreement to split commissions with him was made last year, but that he did discuss splitting some interest in the option in case the city did not make the purchase, for the purpose of putting the matter over with private parties.

Ford had contended that his first connection with the actual splitting of any commissions was after his connection with council ceased and about the time the county paid the check. Accounting for the $20,000 commission, Cronheim received $5,000, Smith $5,000 and Ford approximately $10,000.

Both Smith and Cronheim contended that Ford's share was to be the same as their own—$5,000—and that the additional money was turned over to him for expenses. What these expenses were no one yet has testified, with exception of a few hundred dollars. Ford says he contended for $10,000, saying he did the most work.

Cronheim testified that Ford told him he would have to pay various members of council. Several of those mentioned were members who were not present when the proposition was voted upon or who had opposed it. He testified further that with exception of one member, who told him he had received $200, that he did not believe any of the members named had been paid, but that it was simply a ruse of Ford to receive more money for himself.

When the investigation started the principal parties at first refused to give material testimony and it was only after much effort that they were persuaded to testify. The record will show how the part of Smith, Cronheim and Ford to hold testimony.

The record further shows that Ford at first declined to state whether he got anything or not, and further that when he did receive one of the $5,000 checks the same was turned over to his brother, E. A. Ford, who deposited the same in his name, the balance being turned over to Ford in cash.

Introduction of transcripts of bank statements of the principals involved in the commission split was a development of Thursday night.

A member of the investigating committee said Thursday night "the entire record shows that something was wrong with this transaction—a very apparent effort had been made to hide from the world the fact that they had received any commission at all (except Cronheim), the failure for days to find the paper showing the commission split agreement and the fact that Ford's check went through his brother, all go to make up a record which efforts to hide and evade on the part of the principals parties."

Four Million In Securities On Mail Plane

Valuable Cargo Rushed to
New York Via Atlanta
Air Mail Service.

Laden with the most valuable cargo ever transported on the New York-Atlanta air mail route, a Pitcairn Mailwing soared aloft from Candler field at dusk Thursday with $4,000,000 in securities destined for New York. The securities were mailed at New Orleans, La., Thursday afternoon by Judge Albert S. Williams, state commissioner of finance and taxation for Tennessee, who rushed the papers to Atlanta by airplane from Nashville in order that they might be in New York today.

Judge Williams, stopping at the Henry Grady hotel, reported a fine trip from Nashville, stating that the weather was excellent and the trip required only an hour and 55 minutes. He will return to Nashville today.

PROBE OF PARK SALE IS CLOSED

Sharp Clashes, in Which

Committeemen Figure,
Feature Meeting.

Presentation of a contract signed by Charles M. Ford on August 1, 1927, while he was still alderman from the tenth ward, and a statement by Councilman John A. White, chairman of the parks committee of city council, that as a consequence of this document the entire Perkins tract deal was void brought the councilmanic probe of the transaction to a dramatic and sensational close Thursday night.

The contract was submitted by Sam P. Cronheim, real estate dealer, who assisted in the transaction and who was one of those who signed the contract to participate in division of the $20,000 commission from the sale to the city. When it was handed to the committee, it caused a stir in the large audience gathered in the city council chamber. The paper also bore the signature of John A. Smith, at present president of the Sylvan Hills Improvement club, and was identified by the trio whose names appeared on it.

In presenting the paper to the committee, Cronheim announced that he had searched diligently for the agreement for the past several days but that his efforts were rewarded less than two hours before the last session of the committee was called to convene. The contract called for an equal division of the commission from the sale among the three interested parties.

Councilman White turned abruptly to newspapermen and announced that the contract voids purchase of the tract by the city and county, and thus paves the way for transfer of the obligation and development of the tract over to the Fulton county commission. He offered such a paper at the meeting of city council last Monday, but it was referred to the park committee after having been attacked as illegal.

Sharp clashes between attorneys and witnesses and between members of the investigation committee featured the session. Bank statements of Mr. Cronheim; Mr. Ford; his brother, E. A. Ford, and Mr. Smith were examined but failed to disclose any record which would have led to the assumption that any member of city council was "paid for his illegal."

Noted Grid Star Lays Theft to Head Injury

Los Angeles, August 23.—(United News).—Johnny Hawkins, former captain and star quarterback of a University of Southern California football team, pleaded guilty today to five counts of robbery but blamed a head injury, received on the gridiron, for his crimes.

In asking that he be placed on probation instead of being sent to a penitentiary, Hawkins said the bump on his head had changed him from a law-abiding citizen to a person with an irresistible desire to steal.

Pronouncement of sentence was suspended until a hearing on Hawkins' arguments can be held.

Originally the former football star was accused of perpetrating 30 robberies. Goods valued at nearly $50,000 were found in his rooms and he was alleged to have disposed of as much more.

Because of Hawkins' popularity making unusual interest was shown in his case. At one time it was proposed that an operation be performed on his brain to free him from the alleged hypnotic tendencies.

Hawkins was captain of the Trojan team during the season of 1922-23. The eleven enjoyed a moderately successful schedule and was the first of the U. S. C. gridiron teams to attract national attention. Hawkins was of the plunger type of back and was in the thick of nearly every scrimmage.

ILLEGAL POLICE TACTICS PLAYED

Chicago, August 23.—(AP)—Evidence and other records seized by federal prohibition agents in a raid in a loop building Tuesday were impounded today by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who indicated he would order the evidence suppressed if the agents tried to use it in any further investigations.

The judge's action took place at a hearing where attorneys were arguing over the procedure used by the prohibition agents accused of raising the officers without either a search warrant or a warrant for arrest.

Judge Wilkerson assailed the federal men for their tactics and asked what justification they had in making the raids and the arrests if they had not seen any offense committed. Receiving no answer, the judge said: "It certainly would be a great help to the court if agents would go through the simple ceremony of procuring warrants when they desire to make arrests."

The judge set September 24 for a hearing on a defense counsel motion to return the seized documents.

The raid Tuesday was made on offices of Paul Morton, who advertised his firm as a construction company. Eight men were arrested and one, Merle Adams, was shot and seriously wounded by one of the agents when he said Adams tried to escape.

Panama Canal Swim Finished By Halliburton

Balboa, C. Z., August 23.—(United News)—The American writer, Richard Halliburton, finished his swim of the Panama canal, landing at Balboa pier at 2:30 p. m. today.

Halliburton has spent more than a week in the water, taking time each night for rest. Crocodiles in some places gave the swimmer considerable trouble, but the sharpshooter on board a boat, which accompanied him, prevented any disastrous results.

Halliburton will rest before going to the Chilean island of Juan Fernandez where he will "do" a Robinson Crusoe. His stay on the island, which is supposed to be the island on which Crusoe was marooned, will be complete with his man "Friday" and a few almost useless utensils, if the present plan is carried out.

ALABAMA PRESSES LYNCHING TRIAL

Vernon, Ala., August 23.—(AP)—Charges of murder pending against Robert Lancaster, Joseph Key and seven others, in connection with the lynching in 1921 of W. M. Baird, a coal miner, by alleged members of the Alabama National guard, will be pressed regardless of the attitude of Attorney General Charlie C. McCall, Solicitor B. G. Wilson, of Jasper, announced here today.

The attorney general recently suggested that the charges be made possible because of the almost impossibility of securing a conviction through absence or death of state witnesses.

Lancaster and Key are scheduled to be arraigned at Hamilton, Marion county, Saturday and their cases are on the circuit court docket for call September 3. Trial dates for the other defendants will be set Saturday.

Baird was taken from the Walker county jail and lynched. He was held for murder in connection with the slaying of national guardsmen on duty in the north Alabama coal fields during a miners' strike. It subsequently was developed that Baird's father was killed in a brush with common shortly before his son was lynched.

Lancaster has faced a jury three times for his alleged part in the lynchings. Two hearings resulted in acquittals. An 18-year imprisonment sentence imposed at the third trial was reversed on appeal.

All the defendants are at liberty under bond.

Besieging New York Crowds Send Mrs. Smith to Seclusion

BY MARTHA DALRYMPLE, Associated Press Staff Writer.

New York, August 23.—(AP)—Loyal to her self-imposed task of housewife and mother, Mrs. Smith, wife of the full-fledged democratic presidential nominee, spent the day today besieging a bit of needlework with which she hopes to decorate her home, "any one that we live in."

A little discouraged by the crowds that greeted her and her family at the station at Albany where their private car was waiting, she expressed her expressed great satisfaction at the kindness shown her.

"My, but it is a big party," she said when she was told the 5,000 invitations had been extended to women democrats all over the country, most of them from New York state and those who had attended the notification ceremonies in Albany.

"But I think it will be fine," Mrs. Smith, wife of her husband, Mrs. Francis J. Quillman, her two daughters-in-law, Mrs. Alfred Smith, Jr., and Mrs. Arthur Smith, and Mrs. Mary Collier, a friend of the family, will accompany the governor to Seagrass, N. J., tomorrow, and will all take part in the "Al Smith day" celebration Saturday.

The surf bathing which has held considerable attraction for the governor in his trip to New Jersey coast does not appeal to his wife who admits that she seldom goes in for water sports.

ing Strauss reported the reception. Dr. G. Edwin Parley, of La Grange, Ill., radioed that a dentist reported hearing the same signal Wednesday night, the same number of times.

A vigilant watch tonight by the same amateurs who loaned their station to the Associated Press also to check any reports of the signals was maintained throughout the night. Dr. Farley deduced from the signal that it came from a battery on direct current, and not from a generator, and that it was about 25 meters. While this is not the wave length he said, of the Greater Rockwell, lost in his hop from Cochrane, Ont. to Mt. Evans, Greenland, it is possible by using an aerial, to cause a change in the wave band.

BENNETT HONORED AT UNIONTOWN, PA.

Uniontown, Pa., August 23.—(AP)—Floyd Bennett, former naval aviator who gave his life in an attempt to rescue the crew of the trans-Atlantic flight plane Bremen, today was honored with the dedication of the Floyd Bennett flying field here.

A minor accident marred the ceremonies. A plane piloted by Major H. O. Davidson, of Bolling field, Washington, was damaged when the aviator brought it down on the new field but the pilot was not hurt. The ship overturned when a tire blew out.

Dedication of the flying field was held in connection with the Pennsylvania American Legion convention in session here.

Coast line trains out of Bainbridge resume schedule.

Bainbridge, Ga., August 23.—The Atlantic Coast Line railroad trains are running through to Savannah now scheduled time but because of the high water troubles at Ellaville, Fla., the A. C. L. will continue to serve the Seaboard Air Line railroad here for a week or 10 days more in detouring their trains from Live Oak, Fla., to Tallahassee, Fla., via Bainbridge.

Bainbridge sounds unusually enterprising with the extra railroad traffic of a train each way every day from the Seaboard.

Belmont Marble House at Newport Put on Market

New York, August 23.—(AP)—Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont is to sell Marble House, her sumptuous villa at Newport, R. I., where royalty and society, with a capital S, have been brilliantly entertained. News of her decision to dispose of the property was received today from the owner, now in Europe, by a New York real estate broker.

Mrs. Belmont, who lives in a seventh century castle in the south of France, sold her Long Island estate at Sand Point to Mrs. William Randolph Hearst less than a year ago.

The construction cost of Marble House was several millions, and its rich furnishings are said to be worth additional millions. Mrs. Belmont stipulated that it be disposed of by September 20.

HIRES FORTY BOATS TO HUNT LOST SON

Stonington, Conn., August 23.—(AP)—C. J. McIlvain, of Philadelphia and Watch Hill, R. I., father of one of four youths who drowned in Fishers Island sound on August 11 when their boat capsized, has hired 40 boats to cruise in the sound until further notice, in the hope of recovering the body. At the same time he made arrangements for three airplanes from the local airport to make four flights daily over the sound and for searching parties to put out from Black Island each day.

A reward is offered for the recovery of the body of Trowbridge Cottrell, another of the youths.

Those who lost their lives when the boat capsized were Cottrell, a native of Westbury, R. I.; John McIlvain; Joseph Scales, of Louisville, Ky.; and Lloyd Gas Bankson, of Philadelphia.

J. Barry Colahan was rescued after a night in the water.

PEACH INSTITUTE URGED BY SMITH

to attend an organization meeting to be held in Atlanta.

The plan is to establish the institute as a temporary association to bring about uniform action in standardization programs, thus preserving all steps that have so far been taken in classification of peaches suitable for shipment. It will unite the efforts of the peach grower, the crate maker, the banker, and transportation interests, in preventing a repetition of the financial loss during the 1926 and 1928 peach seasons.

The institute doesn't propose to concern itself with shipments of peaches, believing that there are now ample facilities and agencies for distributing all good fruit.

R. A. Dorby, R. N. Page, and U. L. Spencer, prominent Carolina growers and bankers, plan to enlist the aid of Governor A. W. McLean of North Carolina. In the preliminary work of establishing the institute, the office of the North Carolina agriculture department will be open to communications from peach growers throughout the southeast, who wish to aid. Suggestions as to organization of the body will be given careful consideration, and are requested from residents of peach growing territory.

PORTUGUESE REBELS DEPORTED TO AFRICA

Lisbon, Portugal, August 23.—(AP)—The revolutionists who attempted to overthrow the government July 21 have been deported.

Seven persons were killed and 30 wounded in the revolutionary attempt. The rebels, including officers and men of the seventh regiment of Chasseres, installed themselves in the Castello Sao barracks, which loyal troops stormed and captured.

The insubordinate soldiers were sent to the African colonies for three years service and bomb throwers and others who joined in the movement were exiled to Timor island in the Malay archipelago and to the Azores.

GUEST ON CHICAGO PAY ROLL RETURNS $140 IN SALARY

Chicago, August 23.—(AP)—Charles Clark, negro preacher, who was called before the special grand jury investigation primary election frauds and crimes because his name had been found on the pay roll of the Chicago corporation counsel, today sent a check for $140 to the city treasurer as repayment of the salary he had drawn from the corporation.

The preacher said he was making the repayment in answer to the request of Samuel Eitelson, chief counsel, who said all persons employed by his office who did no work should return their salaries.

Clark told the grand jury he was empowered as an investigator to investigate "America first" candidates and recommend them to his congregation.

RADIO AMATEURS TALK TO HASSELL

noculars, apparently attempting to locate a suitable landing place.

The plane passed away to the east, the inhabitants said, and they believed that Hassell and Cramer made a landing on one of the coastal indentations and are now awaiting rescue. Boats have been started on the search along the entire western coast of Greenland from Cape Farewell to Disko bay.

Delay in transmission of the news to the outside world from Sunday, when the plane was sighted, until today can easily be understood by those familiar with facilities for travel and communication to Greenland.

The two villages from which the plane was sighted are Fiskeneaset and Lichteidet, situated on the southwestern coast. It is approximately 100 miles from Fiskeneaset to Godthaab, where Governor Petersen maintains his headquarters, and it is believed likely—although the governor's message did not make it plain—that the news was carried from Fiskeneaset to Godthaab by primitive means of the north, probably by Eskimo kayak along the coast.

Although there is still nothing to indicate whether the plane was actually downed, the Greenland coast made a safe landing and are well off whether they met disaster in coming down, it was cheering to know that apparently they actually had not.

The treacherous waters of Davis strait had reached the Greenland coast. The last definite word from the plane had indicated they were flying over the straits and it had heretofore been assumed that they fell in the water before sighting Greenland.

Chance for Landing Good.

Because of the assumption that their safety had almost been abandoned because the United States coast guard cutter Marion, plying the waters of the strait, had reported rough seas with virtually no hope that a plane could remain afloat.

If, on the other hand, they actually were actually downed, as reported in Governor Petersen's message today, it is believed the chances that they made a safe landing are better than ever.

Furthermore, it is pointed out here, the developments would tend to lend credence to reports from the United States that amateur radio operators in several cities have been hearing weak messages which they believed were coming from Hassell and Cramer.

With need for speedy rescue work apparent, every agency at the immediate command of Denmark and Norway have joined in the search to-night. Fast motor boats were searching the choppy water from Cape Farewell, on the southern tip of the island, to Disko bay, the west coast, and past Mount Evans, destination of the two aviators.

Godthaab and Fiskeneaset were bases for the rescue work.

Young Vanderbilt sued for damages in press venture.

New York, August 23.—(United News)—J. W. Wam Pauson, formerly of San Francisco, brought suit today against Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., who lost a fortune in the failure of a tabloid newspaper chain, charging Vanderbilt with failure to redeem stock in the Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc. The suit was for $5,000.

According to Pauson, Vanderbilt had given him a personal guarantee that 50 shares of the stock would be redeemed at the end of two years. The stock was valued at $100 a share.

COOLIDGE HAS VISIT FROM AN OLD FRIEND

Superior, Wis., August 23.—(AP)—Enjoying the company of an old personal friend at Cedar Island lodge, President Coolidge spent the day fishing and trappohooting in preparation for more sport tomorrow when he will travel to Lewis, Wis., for an overnight stay at the estate of Charles E. Lewis, of Minneapolis.

Mr. Gallagher, a coal shipper, of Cleveland, Ohio, and his wife, arrived at the white house in Washington immediately to Cedar Island lodge. His arrival at Cedar Island lodge, President Coolidge spent the day fishing and trappohooting in preparation for more sport tomorrow when he will travel to Lewis, Wis., for an overnight stay at the estate of Charles E. Big Trout Promised.

Fishing on Mr. Lewis' 1,800-acre estate is the impelling purpose in Mr. Coolidge's trip. The trout on the stream crossing Mr. Lewis' grounds were reported to be large, plentiful and game. Although he had not had an extensive previous acquaintance with his host of tomorrow, President Coolidge accepted an invitation to try his skill with the Lewis trout.

Mr. Coolidge has also been advised that Mr. Lewis, who is an influential broker, of Minneapolis, is in an excellent position to inform him regarding business and political conditions in the northwest.

The presidential party will return to the summer white house on Saturday, planning to be back in the early afternoon.

Will Receive Callers.

Before leaving tomorrow, however, President Coolidge will go through his regular Friday routine and receive a number of callers. Among these are Mayor Hubert, of Curly, Wis., and Mayor R. Z. On a similar mission, William Maute and six other members of the Wisconsin conservation commission will come to the executive offices. HEADLESS BODY PROVIDES MYSTERY

Angola, Ind., August 23.—(P)—A burned and headless body, a missing sheriff, an automobile with bloodstained cushions and a barn destroyed by fire were the principal elements of a mystery which Steuben county authorities were trying to solve today.

The torso of an unidentified man was found yesterday in the ruins of a barn on a vacant farm near the village of Ray. Neighbors told officers that they noticed a fire in the barn early Wednesday, but no investigation was made until later in the day when the body was found. The head had been burned off. The man was about five and one-half feet tall and weighed about 140 pounds.

Coincidentally with the finding of the body it was learned that Sheriff Charles Zimmerman, of Steuben county, who has been active in the prosecution of run runners, had been missing from his home since Tuesday noon. His disappearance has caused considerable anxiety among his family and friends. The torso of the man found in the burned barn, however, does not correspond with the measurements of the sheriff.

An automobile with bloodstained cushions and containing firearms was found in the jail garage at Angola yesterday. How the machine got into the garage is not known, but keys found near the burned barn fitted the lock on the car.

Two sets of license plates were found in the automobile. One had been issued to E. S. Bliss, of Muncie, Ind., and the other to T. P. Williams, of Detroit. Muncie and Detroit authorities were unable to identify either party.

The body found in the barn had only one identifying mark—the initial "B" on the underwear.

Drops Dead.

Americus, Ga., August 23.—(P)—R. J. Perry, prominent local business man, dropped dead on the street here today after a heart attack.

THIN PEOPLE GAIN WEIGHT

Virogen Supplies Elements Nature Requires For Building Solid Flesh and Strength.

ACCORDING to leading authorities, it is no longer necessary for thin, frail people to give up hope of becoming strong and healthy. The discovery of Virogen, they say, has demonstrated the fact that thinness is caused by a lack of the nourishment which nature requires for the building of flesh and strength, and which it is now known Virogen supplies.

This new discovery, they point out, has been proven, after exhaustive experiments and tests, to be one of the most important made in recent years, inasmuch as its results are permanent, and unlike the so-called tonics, which only temporarily stimulate.

Nature Requires Virogen.

One physician declares that thin people need not put the blame for their excessive thinness and lack of endurance powers upon the present conditions of living, hurriedly cooked foods; for food alone cannot build flesh, if the blood itself is not properly nourished. Nature requires something more for strength and nerves, and to prove his assertion that nothing will supply this deficiency so well as Virogen he points to the hundreds of cases here in Atlanta where thin, weak, frail people have gained astonishingly in weight and become strong, sturdy, healthy men and women after using Virogen.

Jacobs' and leading druggists everywhere sell and recommend VIROGEN TONIC TABLETS for building weight, for restoring the vital powers and for general rundown physical weakness. Satisfactory results fully guaranteed or money promptly refunded.

MANDAMUS ASKED IN LEGAL BATTLE FOR WOMAN'S LIFE

Another effort to avert the impending execution of Mrs. Eula Thompson, 24, in the electric chair will take shape today in a petition to the Georgia supreme court for a mandamus order, forcing a review of the case, it was announced by A. S. Johnson, defense counsel.

Attorney Johnson Thursday afternoon was preparing the petition following the action of Trial Judge C. C. Pittman, of the Cherokee circuit, in refusing to certify a bill of exceptions filed Wednesday in behalf of the condemned woman.

Should the supreme court decline to issue the mandamus, Mrs. Thompson's lone hope lies in executive clemency, court officials said.

At Pulaski tower Thursday, where Mrs. Thompson is being held for safe keeping, the prisoner was pessimistic over the prospect of clemency.

Mrs. Thompson is under death sentence for the murder of Osborne, a Chattahoochee storekeeper, a crime for which her husband and a negro have already been put to death.

If the supreme court declines to reopen the case, Mrs. Thompson will probably be returned to Chattahoochee on September 3 to be re-sentenced. Her appeal from the verdict of the Cherokee circuit court was denied several days ago by the Georgia high tribunal.

REVOKING OF BESS PARDON IS UPHOLD BY CIRCUIT COURT

Columbia, S. C., August 23.—(P)—The revoking of Governor Edwards of a pardon granted Ben Bess, Florence negro, was sustained today in an opinion by Judge W. H. Townsend, of the circuit court. The ruling of Judge Townsend, given at the end of argument of the case before him, followed the submitting to him by J. C. Townsend, master in equity of Richland county, of "findings in fact" obtained at a recent hearing.

HARDMAN 'ALARM' IS SEEN BY HARRIS

Governor L. G. Hardman is "alarmed" over the political outlook in his campaign for reelection and as a result his campaign managers and the governor "have taken to the hustings" in an effort "to stem the tide against the governor," according to a statement issued Thursday by Roy V. Harris, manager of the campaign of State Senator E. D. Rivers, the governor's opponent.

In the statement it was declared that the governor is spending large sums of money to be re-elected and said that large sums of money are being sent to several counties in the state.

The statement is as follows: "Alarming news trickled and finally flowed into Governor Hardman's headquarters all last week. So alarming were the reports that both Dr. Hardman and one of his campaign managers took to the hustings."

"Check Book Opened."

"Saturday the check book was opened. Reports have reached us from all over Georgia that to this county, and that county, money has been sent as much as $1,000 to a county. This is Governor Hardman's sole reliance. Afraid to meet his record upon the open hustings before the people face to face with his opponent, he has the secluded rooms he gathers his following and opens his check book to try to purchase the governorship of Georgia."

"Governor Hardman has already stated that he has run two very expensive campaigns, campaigns known by all to have been the most expensive ever waged in Georgia. Dr. Hardman has already stated that the use of money is right provided it is your own money, but a man should not use other people's. No one but a millionaire can be governor of Georgia."

"With highly paid political experts to prepare his propaganda, with his speeches carefully prepared, with a fury of invective and innuendo, insinuations and charges but mostly with a wide open check book, Dr. Hardman is hoping to stem the tide now running strongly against him. He does not realize that he was elected last time by default. Our friends are active and alert. We are not alarmed. The fearful delinquency of a state that occurred with Newberry in Michigan, Vane, in Pennsylvania, and Smith in Illinois, cannot be repeated in Georgia. We ask that plain, ordinary people of Georgia to be on their guard. We thank God this state is composed of free, untrammelled citizens, who will vote their convictions."

"Signal Fires Burning."

"Senator Rivers is a poor man, born not to purple and fine linen, but of that sturdy stock which has ever been our hope and pride. Senator Rivers worked his way through Young Harris college, both he and his wife have devoted themselves to public service. Senator Rivers in the general assembly of Georgia and his wife as a teacher in our public schools. He has to rely upon the unselfish, devoted patriotic services, both of his friends and of those who believe in progress and advancement. The signal fires are burning from mountains to seashore. Tuesday the most remarkable political gathering in a decade listened entranced in Hall county as with burning words Senator Rivers pleaded for Georgia that is to come out of this campaign."

"The people are marching and all the forces of evil—slavery, etc., aided by a millionaire's check book cannot stop them. Be on guard, citizens of this imperial state, and on September 12, the victory will be overwhelming. Roman Legion and Grecian Phalanx have not been more invincible than the embattled hosts of Georgia when they fight for right. September 12 is the day of victory. Join with us and let us then plan for a new day. A progressive legislature and a progressive governor, both nominated on the same day. Unceasing vigilance until then must be our watchword."

"Rivers Campaign Headquarters. "By: ROY V. HARRIS, "Campaign Manager."

MINORS WILL HOLD FAMILY REUNION NEAR STONE MT.

Stone Mountain, Ga., August 23.—The eleventh annual reunion of the descendants of Lazarus Minor will be held at Pleasant Grove church, four miles east of Stone Mountain, on Sunday, August 26. There will be a short program and business meeting in the morning followed by a bountiful dinner spread on a long table in the churchyard. The entire afternoon will be spent in greetings and discussing incidents of by-gone days.

Several generations ago Lazarus Minor settled in South Carolina with a large family of children. These men and women came into Georgia, and their descendants are scattered over the state, many of them living in or near Atlanta. People drive for many miles to attend this reunion, some coming from other states. An attendance of several hundred is expected and a pleasant day is anticipated. All relatives and friends of the Minor family are cordially invited to be present on this occasion.

Eugene Talmadge, candidate for reelection as commissioner of agriculture, declared Thursday that he will fill a speaking engagement at Covington, Ga., Saturday afternoon. He said he had heard reports were being circulated he had canceled this date, but he said such reports are erroneous. He delivered a speech Thursday at Greenville, Ga.

Mr. Talmadge's statement is as follows: "I received a wire this morning that some of my opponent's campaign managers are circulating the report in the neighborhood of Covington, Ga., that I will not speak at Covington Saturday."

"I will be at Covington Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock eastern time, and I am going to do just exactly what my opponent requested me to do when he declined to meet me there. I will tell the people what went with the $194,873.18 drawn from the state treasury for the first six months of 1928, and show them exactly how much of this money was paid by me on debts of the former administration as required by the acts of 1927, pages 12 and 13."

"I am speaking at Greenville, Ga., today and am showing the people there the receipted checks for the money paid out by me and charged to the former administration."

Treasure Chest of Memory

Buffalo, in their native state of New York, will be Mary and Bob's destination when they are heard in the True Story hour, through the Columbia system at 7 o'clock tonight.

A musical description of Mary and Bob's journey from Indiana to Buffalo constitutes the first half of this broadcast, while the latter portion is a dramatized version of the true story which is told to these young adventurers in search of "truth that is stranger than fiction." The story, the scene of which is laid during the San Francisco earthquake, is one of shattered dreams and concerns a girl who discovered from her own experience that it takes some men a long time to grow up.

A circus that travelled in a boat, with the animals all put safely away in the stalls just as snugly as they probably were in Noah's ark of Bible days, will be the theme of the Dixie circus program to be heard through WSB and the NBC system at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon.

"Uncle Bob" Sherwood, comic star of the sawdust ring half a century ago, will lead Dorothy and Dick through the roomy boat which houses the circus, showing them the neat staterooms and cabins for the performers, the quarters for the animals, and the gaudy arena where the show is held. Shining brass railings, red velvet curtains, rich tassels, shouting barkers, the muffled noise of the participants of the show, the faint odor of grease paint, pink tickets and yellow ones, the ring-master, with his black silk hat and crackling whip, in short, all the glory of old circus times, will be revived with "Uncle Bob" taking the roles of his characters as they appear.

Pink lemonade and popcorn will be secondary pleasures when the circus hand strikes up. The calliope and the clown band also play a part in this program.

A novelty Spasm Trio will be a feature of the Wrigley Review to be heard through WSB and NBC system at 7 o'clock tonight.

"The Faded Knot of Blue," and a song by Crumit, "I'll Meet Her When the Sun Goes Down," will be the offerings of the trio for the amusement of King Spear and his court. Many vocal and instrumental soloists will present their best efforts for the occasion, while an orchestra of merry men will play such numbers as "Mother Goose Parade," "Wedding Day at Troldhaugen," "The Wooden Soldier," a waltz from the ballet, "Sylvia," by Delibes, and "Fashionette."

The complete program for this broadcast follows:

"Two Lips," quartet; "Mother Goose Parade," orchestra; "Barging the Scale," solo; "I'm Falling in Love with Someone," "Naughty Marietta," "Hail, Hail, the Girls We've Got," "Sister Susie," "Yankee Doodle," "Wedding Day at Troldhaugen," "The Wooden Soldier," "Sylvia," "Fashionette," "Home, Sweet Home."

Their vacation over the Cities Service Cavaliers are coming back with a collection of new popular numbers for the Cities Service hour, to be broadcast over WSAI and the NBC system at 6 o'clock tonight.

During the sixty-minute program The Cavaliers will come before the microphone with four groups of songs, three of which will be popular numbers of today, especially arranged for the pleasing voices of this popular male quartet. Beginning with this program The Cavaliers will present a member of their quartet each week in a solo. Tonight, Leo O'Hourke, first tenor and manager, sings "In My Bouquet of Memories."

The popular tunes and arranged himself, and the other the "Serenade" of Rudolf Friml.

In addition to selections by Saint-Saens, Heife, and Gershwin from Rudolf Friml's musical show, "Somebody," the Cities Service orchestra offers a little novelty by Orth called "In a Clock Store," which interprets the spirit of a quaint little shop where all sizes and sorts of timepieces are found.

ENGLAND GREETSKELLOGG AT DOCK

Plymouth, England, August 23.—(P) The pact for the outflow of war to be signed at Paris next Monday is "a step forward to civilization, a great moral step, a treaty over which nations must go before they can go to war again," Secretary Kellogg declared upon his arrival here today en route to Paris.

The American secretary of state and Prime Minister MacKenzie King of Canada were accorded a civic welcome by the mayor of Plymouth and other dignitaries who boarded the steamer Ile de France for the purpose.

Replying to the welcome, Mr. Kellogg said that both he and Mr. King were gratified that they should be going to Paris for such a purpose. Referring to the "end of war treaty" the secretary said:

"It is not the work of any one man or of any one nation. It is the work of many nations and of many men. It springs from the hearts of the people who today are all longing for any step which may prevent another great calamity of war."

"I believe that this is a great step forward to civilization, a great moral step, a treaty over which nations must go before they can go to war again."

"So far as our neighbor Canada and ourselves are concerned, we really don't need a treaty; we have a treaty written in the sentiments and hearts of our people from a long and intimate acquaintance."

Premier King echoed the secretary of state's sentiments, declaring that they were held in common by the people of all classes and parties throughout North America.

"We share a common desire for peace," he said, "and I think that the great gift of prosperity which has come to our respective countries is due in a very large measure to the fact that we have not been concerned with war nor have ever been thinking in terms of war in respect to one another. On the contrary, we have accepted the normal relations of neighbors and have done all we could to make the people as happy and as friendly as possible."

Mr. Kellogg said that he would not engage in any conversations regarding the Franco-British naval understanding. He added that he was not going to make any speeches in Europe, not even at the signing of the treaty.

"Well, I must say just a few words," he said, "and I think that the great gift of prosperity which has come to our respective countries is due in a very large measure to the fact that we have not been concerned with war nor have ever been thinking in terms of war in respect to one another. On the contrary, we have accepted the normal relations of neighbors and have done all we could to make the people as happy and as friendly as possible."

Premier King said that he expected to visit England and hoped to see Premier Baldwin and L. S. Amery, dominions.

L. F. M. Store Managers in Convention Here; Healthy Business Prospects Seen by Leonard

Managers of the L. F. M. chain of southern department stores who Thursday attended the semi-annual general conference of the organization here. Seated, left to right, W. S. Hitchcock, of the Jacksonville store; W. A. Webber, Montgomery, Ala.; F. Morgan, Tampa, Fla.; J. A. Thompson, Augusta, Ga.; William B. Jones, manager of the Atlanta L. F. M. store, and Fred F. Henry, of Mobile, Ala. Standing, W. T. Rathell, Richmond, Va.; C. M. Sherrill, Birmingham, Ala.; W. McJordan, Rome, Ga.; A. T. Dixon, Winston-Salem, N. C.; F. E. Walters, Macon, Ga.; H. M. Wells, Knoxville, Tenn.; and Joe Blonstein, New York buyer of the L. F. M. organization.

A prospect of "sound, healthy and growing business with no boom conditions" is anticipated by the L. F. M. organization of southern department stores, it was announced Thursday by W. E. Leonard, president of the chain, at a meeting of store managers from all over the chain held at the Henry Grady hotel.

Foreseeing no effect from the presidential election and confident of continuing normal prosperity, Mr. Leonard said that his company has just opened a store in Petersburg, Va., another in Rome, Ga., and in October will open a third new establishment in Columbus, Ga. Other stores in southern cities are also in prospect in the near future, he added.

The meeting attended by Mr. Leonard and George Mueller, vice president, was a semi-annual general conference of managers of the 15 L. F. M. stores for discussion of methods for improving merchandising for the fall season. After business sessions during the morning and afternoon, the meeting terminated with a banquet in the green room of the Henry Grady hotel Thursday night, at which department managers of the local L. F. M. store directed by William B. Jones were in attendance.

The L. F. M. organization, with headquarters in New York, was founded 12 years ago with a single store in Montgomery, Ala., and has enjoyed rapid growth, its sales volume now exceeding seven million of dollars annually.

Officials have repeatedly refused to agree declaring it would be ruinous to the miners.

Although the number of miners affected was proportionately small, hope was expressed both by the union officials and the operators that the scale agreed to would prove acceptable to other Ohio operators and that they would make an agreement on that basis with the United Mine Workers.

The Ohio Coal Operators' association, whose membership comprises owners of the majority of Ohio mines, has refused several times to treat with union officials.

About fourteen mines, employing from 3,000 to 3,500 union miners are immediately affected. The agreement dates from September 1 and terminates March 31, 1930.

The wage scale adopted as submitted by a joint sub-committee of miners and operators which has had the matter in hand two days this week and a portion of last week, does not provide a continuous competitive basis—a feature to which the union officials have repeatedly refused to agree declaring it would be ruinous to the miners.

Drink's a Drunk Savannah Judge Rules on Bench

Savannah, Ga., August 23.—(P)—Any person who takes one drink is considered in the Savannah police court to be under the influence of whisky, according to a statement handed down from the bench today by Gordon Saussey, city alderman, who is acting as recorder during the illness of Judge John Schwartz.

If there be any sign of whisky in odor of breath, in actions, or otherwise manifested, then the defendant is under the influence of whisky, the acting recorder declared.

In explanation of his ruling, Alderman Saussey said that what might be a small totality is a drink to one man, a drink to another will be sufficient to score a complete knockout.

The decision is expected to have a decided effect upon future defendants who are charged with driving automobiles while under the influence of liquor, as, under the ruling they cannot enter pleas of "drunk" but "not drunk," or "only one drink."

TWELFTH WARD CLUB HEARS MAYOR PRO TEM

Claude L. Ashley, mayor pro tem of Atlanta, was principal speaker Thursday night at an organization rally of the Twelfth Ward Improvement club at the Bessie Branham park, in Kirkwood.

The speaker confined his address to a review of the early history of Atlanta, a topic on which he is regarded as an authority. Mr. Ashley made particular reference to the important part civic and neighborhood organizations have played in the development of the city.

A large crowd of twelfth ward citizens attended the meeting, at which plans were discussed for organization of the newly-formed improvement club. Refreshments were served. Although county, state and national elections are near, political issues were not discussed.

State and county candidates have been invited to outline their policies at a political forum at 7:45 o'clock Saturday night in the Community hall at East Point.

FIGURES THAT SHAME.

An article by Frank I. Weller, Associated Press farm editor, prepared after careful research and accompanied by a government chart, shows the glaring inequalities in highway construction by states.

In the states that have specific road paving systems Georgia stands among the lowest in the list, counting all roads that are reported by the highway department as "paved,"

that is, the secondary or chert roads,

the sand-clay roads, and the shoddy penetration surfacing that lasts for only a few months at most. Of the entire state mileage the percentage is 14.7.

There are few lower, and none in the southeast. North Carolina's percentage is 37.6, all of which is permanent, whereas only a small portion of Georgia's misnamed paving is permanent.

The percentage in Florida is 42.9.

In South Carolina it is 22.3, and in Alabama 27.7.

Are the people of this state willing to stand for this sort of national advertising, and this retarding and obstructing economic condition, not to take into account the enormous expenses that are incessantly fastened upon automobile owners who are paying one of the highest road taxes imposed in America?

It is a shameful situation, made the more so by the patchwork plan that prevents connected highways, and almost stops motor traffic in seasons of rain and storm such as experienced last week.

GOEBEL'S GREAT RECORD.

Arthur Goebel made a record non-stop flight from Los Angeles to

New York, clipping off eight hours from the former record.

In the past long distance flights have been principally attempted overseas. They have called for a tremendous toll of life, as pioneering in any great development does.

Only in the past few days other lives have been sacrificed.

It is heartening to know that overland flights are being popularized. The hazards are less. The direct results in the interest of commercial aviation are greater.

Following the Goebel record

there will probably be several attempts to break it. All of which should be encouraged. It is hoped, however, that trans-oceanic flights may be abandoned until the great science of aviation has been perfected to a greater degree than at present. Why not a nonstop flight from Atlanta to Los Angeles by the southern course? It would go a long way in establishing aviation as a practical long distance system of transport.

The science of aviation is established. It is just as firmly rooted as transportation by rail, or motor, or on water. The point is to make it practicable from a dividend paying standpoint. To do this the disasters of overseas attempts should stop. Every life that is lost in the ocean is a setback to a great progressive development of a strictly economic nature.

BYRD'S GREAT ADVENTURE.

The first of Commander Byrd's ships, in his south pole expedition, will sail Saturday.

No exploration expedition has been so carefully planned, and in the intrepid Virginia aviator America he has personally looked after the selection of the volumes.

The men of his staff, working and resting and playing, under the stress of uncertainty, will have plenty of reading to quicken their courage. And that is what the head of the expedition had in mind.

There will be long periods of waiting, lots of drab days and nights, lots of heartaches. The spirit of adventure must be kept alive.

The world is waiting and watching for this expedition with more interest than ever attended a former undertaking of the kind. And the world has peculiar confidence in this southern man who has proven his ability not only as an aviator, but as a scientist.

PARTY TIDE IS RISING.

Governor Smith's acceptance addressed started a flood tide for the democratic nominees. His earnestness in pleading for a sober nation was thrilling. His pledge to enforce the law, if elected president, something at which the republican regime has miserably failed, and thousands of new converts have joined with democracy.

As an illustration of the enthusiasm, one Georgia instance will serve. A radio lawn party was given by former Representative

Bonnell H. Stone at his home in Blairsville, the small county seat of Union county, which always goes republican in presidential elections.

There were a number of outstanding republican citizens at Mr.

Stone's radio party. When Governor Smith finished speaking the suggestion was made that a Smith-

Robinson club be formed at once.

It had not been contemplated. The organization was created with 101 members signing the roll, among which were many republicans. With such a working body, headed by former State Senator "Pat" Harrison, Union county will give its vote

this year to the democratic nominees.

That is one of perhaps thousands of instances of the kind all over the country. The speech was so masterful, so frank, so profound as to national and international affairs, that the election of Smith and Robinson in November is decidedly more probable than doubtful.

BE ON GUARD.

This is the crucial time as to how we will infestation in central and north Georgia.

In south Georgia the danger has practically passed except in sections where planting was late.

But the board of entomology reports that the weevil is a greater menace today than in five years, in sections not beyond its control.

The remedy is calcium arsenate and intensive cultivation.

Many farmers, whose cotton crops from a foliage standpoint, look good, do not think seriously of the weevil menace.

Hoover will conduct his campaign from his home on S street in Washington. Just to beat the other man to it we dub his location as

S street.

The halitosis and body odor advertisements are not quite as agonizing as the one where the fellow's socks are draped over his shoe tops

when calling on his girl.

We have a prize fight occasionally and a national campaign every four years but baseball goes on forever.

A current story states that capitalists are going back to the farm.

It would be better if they were going back to back the farmers.

Senator Moses says the outstanding issue of the campaign is the tariff question. Thus he admits a terrific endeavor to gain his end.

Professional reformers are as active in the campaign as federal office holders.

Tunney is generally referred to as "the killer." Well, he knows his dead language.

The war in Nicaragua is over.

The marines had the arms and the rebels the legs.

One of the sweetest stories ever told: Sugar declines in price during the preserving season.

There is to be a lot of dry rot

in the campaign.

Democracy will win with more action and less faction.

Smith's election will be an example of mind over matter.

THE WORLD'S

WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Wealthy

Ancients.

In spite of the astronomical dimensions of the Rockefeller, Ford and other modern fortunes, some of the ancients had an amount of wealth not at all to be sneezed at. Take Croesus, king of Lydia, for instance.

Nobody knows how rich he was. But his name became synonymous with fabulous riches. An idea of his wealth may be gained from the account in Herodotus on the prophecy offering he sent to the oracle at Delphi to get a favorable prognosis for a war he intended to wage against the Persians. His bid consisted of a pyramid of 117 bricks of solid gold, weighing 400 pounds apiece. The whole was surmounted by a golden lion weighing 300 pounds.

In addition there was a collection of bowls of gold, silver, necklaces and money. At present-day calculations

the value of this gift to the gods amounted to $200,000,000. But apparently it wasn't enough, for Croesus did not obtain the victory he craved.

Certain of Croesus' relatives deem have been quite as well off as he himself. Pythius, one of his distant kin, is pictured as giving Xerxes a gift of the result of his best success in the amount of $24,000,000. When Xerxes hesitated, Pythius assured him that it was a mere trifle that he happened to have on hand.

Solomon, in whose days "silver was as dust" in Jerusalem, had an income of $10,000,000 a year. The sum which he put in the Hebrew king in the Rockefeller class. Diodorus estimates

the wealth of the Pharaoh Rameses

III at $10,000,000 in the form of gold and silver. The sum of these values of this day. So if the poor were always with us, the rich were not very far behind.

Cows Carry

Passports.

In view of the modern worship of the joke, it is surprising that the vagaries of the Trianon frontier have not yet been exploited by professional humorists, says the Observer, and tells the story of the Hungarian village of Suss, where new frontier divides the pasturing ground of cows going out to feed is obliged to carry a passport, the number of which is burned on its hoof. As cows, unluckily are not provided with passports, it falls to the herdsmen to carry the passport to the border and show it to the customs officials. The herdsmen, who are responsible for tracing the cows, make one doubt whether they are not more responsible for the cows than for the passport. (Copyright,

PEACH CANDIDATES MUST STAY LOYAL

Fort Valley, Ga., August 23.—Candidates in the democratic primary on September 12 in Peach county must sign a pledge to vote for Governor Alfred E. Smith and Senator Joseph Robinson in the presidential primary in November or their names will not appear on the ballot.

Without a dissenting vote the Peach county democratic executive committee this afternoon went on record as requiring all candidates from whom they required entrance fees to sign a statement pledging their loyalty to all nominees of the democratic party in state, county and national contests. The candidates who were propounded the questions in registered letters are given five days to answer. In the event any refuse to reply or answer in the negative their names will be stricken from the lists and their entrance fees returned.

Rumors to the effect that one or more candidates running for state house offices were going to support Herbert Hoover in the November election, but at the same time seek election to offices on the democratic ticket, resulted in calling the meeting today. Democrats who are planning a militant campaign in Peach county expressed great pleasure at the action taken by the committee, in view of the fact that the motion demanding loyalty in all races was adopted unanimously.

Those voting for the motion were Chairman J. W. Vinson, Mrs. C. N. Rountree, Al Tabor, George Adams, J. T. Ingram, Ed Cooley, Ben Anderson, Louis T. Rigdon, Johnnie Jones and Louis L. Brown, Jr. The only absent member was Mrs. W. J. Brown, who found it impossible to attend, but who it is understood is in accord with the action taken.

HARDMAN CHARGES ASSAILED BY RIVERS

Summerville, Ga., August 23.—Senator E. D. Rivers spoke to a large gathering of people here today in the interest of his candidacy for governor. Senator Rivers was introduced by Wesley Shropshire, former representative of Chatham county and former senator from the 42d district.

Judge Shropshire in his introduction briefly reviewed Senator Rivers' outstanding record as a representative in the Georgia legislature and especially emphasized his progressive attitude in matters of state coming before that body.

Senator Rivers, in outlining his platform before the voters of Chatham and surrounding counties, emphasized the necessity of a reduction in the state department and named the departments as they should be when reduced.

He vigorously scored Dr. Hardman for making charges which he claims that the governor cannot substantiate and also condemned the governor's failure to meet him in joint debate to discuss the issues of the campaign and to prove the charges he has made against the senator's record.

Gladys Hanson in Chicago Opening of Sherwood Play

GLADYS HANSON.

Gladys Hanson, Atlanta's own dramatic star, one of the half dozen greatest actresses on the American stage today, will open for the new season in "The Queen's Husband," at the Cort theater, Chicago, on September 16, at 8 o'clock.

Miss Hanson expects to play in Chicago for several months, after which she will go to Philadelphia and later to New York.

"The Queen's Husband" was written by Robert Sherwood, editor of Life, the weekly magazine, and is said to be one of the cleverest comedies ever written for the American stage. It is peculiarly suitable for Miss Hanson and her work in the leading role is said to excel her splendid artistry in other productions.

Miss Hanson's last Atlanta appearance was at the Erlanger about a year ago when she co-starred with William Hodge in "The Judge's Husband." She seems to be making a specialty of these plays with the possessive husband complex.

TALMADGE DEFENDS RECORD IN ADDRESS
Greenville, Ga., August 23.—(Special)—Eugene Talmadge, candidate for commissioner of agriculture, spoke here today in the interest of his candidacy. Judge C. E. Roop, of the Meriwether superior court, presided over the address.

Mr. Talmadge discussed his own political record and that of C. C. Adams, his opponent. He charged that Mr. Adams, as a member of the legislature, voted both ways on the passage of the fertilizer bill which was brought before that body.

Charges also were made by Mr. Talmadge that Fred T. Bridges, former assistant commissioner of agriculture during the administration of J. J. Brown, is now one of the managers of Mr. Adams' campaign.

The speaker also compared the fertilizer bill he has issued recently with the fertilizer bill issued by his predecessor.

BISHOP CANDLER SPENDS QUIET DAY ON 71ST BIRTHDAY

With renewed determination to continue his active work as a bishop in the Methodist Episcopal church, south, for as many more years as he is able to, Bishop Warren A. Candler, of Atlanta, passed his seventy-first birthday Thursday. The bishop spent the day quietly at his home and leisurely read the many telegrams and letters of congratulation that were sent to him by his hosts of friends.

He has repeatedly said that his age in years is not his age in feeling, and that, after all, it is what counts. Bishop Candler considers himself young and says that birthdays do not count after one has reached the traditional three score and ten.

Bishop Candler is a native Georgian, born in Carroll county and reared within the state boundaries. He was educated in part at Emory university and has been a resident of Atlanta since 1898.

WRIGHT TO SUPPORT HOOVER'S CANDIDACY

Rome, Ga., August 23.—(AP)—In an open letter to Governor Smith today, Barry Wright, prominent attorney and son of Seaborn Wright, pioneer dry crusader, announced his decision to vote for Herbert Hoover because of Governor Smith's stand on the prohibition and immigration questions.

Asserting that he saw in Smith's hesitations a complete fulfillment of the open threat to the south," Wright declared that the prohibition law be no longer a national law; that each state shall interpret it; that at each state line a different degree of drunkenness shall be permitted; in short, that law shall be abolished and anarchy shall be licensed.

As to immigration, Wright said Smith "for the second time defied the promises of his party." Our platform stood for the preservation of the immigration law. The ignorant, vicious elements of foreign nations, it was promised, would be kept out of the country. Governor Smith will urge the change of the law, a change that will lower the type admitted, and make the scum of Europe the reservoir for our "dry" from.

Insisting that he believed in party loyalty and had listened for a reason for voting the party's ticket, Wright said he could not vote for "this betrayal of the democratic party; this betrayal by a combination of Tammany and wet republicans who have captured it body and soul."

"Not only does Governor Smith advocate the destruction of the prohibition law," said the attorney, "but he demands that the constitution of the United States be amended. Each state will be put in the liquor business. The good men and women will not only be made to see this great reform destroyed; but they, as citizens, will be forced to become partners in the traffic. The father will be made a partner in the business that debauches his son; the mother a contributor to the ruin of her daughter; the very churches of the living God stockholders in legalized debauchery. Our states—supposed to be the means of good government, are to be put in the liquor business. What a glorious opportunity this will be for Tammany and the other machines that it has educated in its particular system."

Wright declared that "fear of negro domination" is only a false and desperate appeal by bloody shirt politicians and that the only negro problem was that of keeping cheap, easily obtained liquor out of the hands of the negro.

Deriding criticism of Protestant ministers who have been heard against Smith, Wright said, "I'll take my stand with the ministers of God. I'll go with them this time. Tammany and everything it stands for."

"The great cities of America are its crying shame," the statement continued. "Our political institutions have failed, and Tammany Hall, the owner and dictator of the democratic party today, is known to the ends of the world as the inventor and teacher of municipal misrule."

"There is for me another reason. I have seen my father, a young man to now, in his old age, give his life to fighting the liquor traffic. I have seen him surrender every personal ambition to carry on this crusade. It was not popular then. It had fighters, not lip servers, as we see today, when the apologetics for Governor Smith first assure us of their enmity to liquor."

MAYOR REQUESTS "LUTHER Z. ROSSER" NAME FOR SCHOOL

Mayor I. N. Ragsdale Thursday wrote to every member of the Atlanta board of education asking that body to comply with a resolution passed Monday by city council asking the school board to name one of Atlanta's new schools in honor of the late Luther Z. Rosser.

Mr. Ragsdale pointed to the many years of public service which Mr. Rosser rendered as president of the board of education, and declared that no more worthy name could be selected.

Council Monday approved a resolution requesting the board to name one of the schools for Mr. Rosser. The paper was offered by Alderman William B. Hartsfield, of the third ward.

LITA GREY CHAPLIN FAILS TO APPEAR FOR FINAL DECREE

Los Angeles, August 23.—(P)—Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin failed to appear in court here yesterday to seek the final divorce decree from Charles Chaplin, and neither she nor her attorneys offered any explanation of her departure from announced plans. Mrs. Chaplin was granted an interlocutory decree after the screen comedian a year ago.

PARK CONTRACT SIGNED BY FORD

note to buy the 420-acre tract at a purchase price of $410,000. Cronheim testified that Councilman Ford told him it would be necessary to pay 11 members of city council, but he refused positively on the stand Thursday night that he does not believe any one of them was paid of the money but that the assertion was made by Ford as a ruse to get a lion's share of the commission.

Division of testimony Cronheim got $5,000; Smith $5,000, and Ford $5,000, the remaining $1,100 going for attorneys' fees and expenses incurred in getting the option.

Ford again denied that he ever told Cronheim it would be necessary to pay any member of council or had ever mentioned the name of any of that body in that connection.

Members of the investigation committee in addition to Hartsfield are Councilmen White, Howard C. McCutcheon, of the second ward; Councilman Ellis B. Barrett, of the fifth ward, and Frank Reynolds, of the eighth.

Alderman Hartsfield and Councilmen White and McCutcheon, all members of the investigation committee, were among those who said Ford told him he (Ford) would have to pay. Others who were thus connected were Alderman Robert E. Gann, of the sixth ward; Alderman W. G. Dobbs, of the seventh ward; Alderman Oscar H. Williamson, of the ninth ward; Alderman Claude E. Buchanan, of the eighth ward; Councilman Harry York, of the sixth ward; Councilman W. Garland Cooper, of the tenth ward, and Councilman William E. Saunders, of the twelfth ward.

Charge Is Denied. They all vehemently denied ever having been paid or promised anything of value or any money in connection with the transaction.

Seven members of city council have announced they will insist that the entire matter be referred to the county grand jury for investigation, and it was freely predicted Thursday night that city council would be asked to refer the matter to the grand jury.

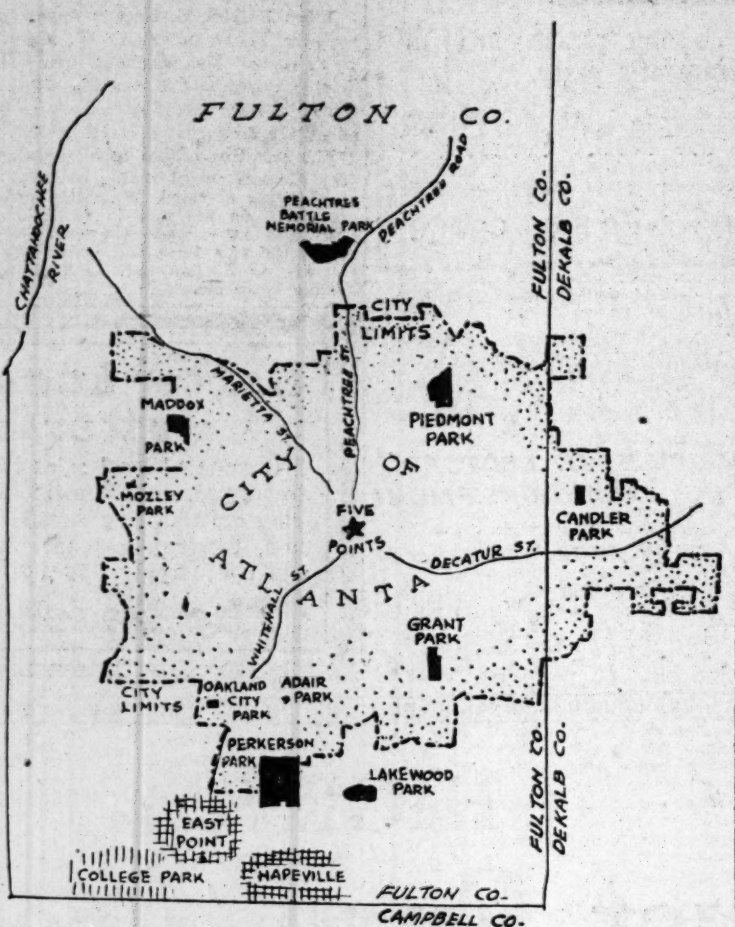

Large Crowd Attends. Council chambers were well filled with members of council and spectators when Alderman W. B. Hartsfield, chairman of the investigating committee, called the session to order shortly after 7 o'clock.

Charles M. Ford, member of council from the tenth ward and one of the prominent figures in the investigation, entered the chamber with his brother, E. A. Ford, a few minutes after the call to order.

W. F. Tally, representative of the Fulton National bank, was the first witness called to the stand. Tally was called by Attorney James A. Branch, who is representing S. P. Cronheim, real estate dealer who figured in the purchase of the Perkerson tract by the city.

Asked if he had with him the bank account of C. M. Ford in response to the subpoena issued by the committee, Tally produced a record which he said was a transcript of Ford's account. Branch and his law partner, William Schley Howard, studied the documents carefully for a few minutes, and then passed them to the

Perkerson Park Income Expected To Pay Cost

Artist's drawing of the principal parks of the city of Atlanta is shown above with the 420-acre Perkerson tract known as Ragdale park in the extreme southern section of the city and extending beyond the city limits. Proximity of the tract to Adair, Oakland City and Lakewood parks is shown and also its position with reference to East Point, College Park and Hapeville.

The 420-acre Perkerson tract in the southwestern section of the city, purchase of which is the storm center of a councilman investigation, is a rectangular strip with about half of the acreage lying just outside the city limits.

It is bounded on the north by Decker avenue, the south by Lakewood avenue, the east by Stewart avenue and on the west by Sylvan road. City council has voted to pay $410,000 for the tract for park purposes and the park committee has changed the name of the strip and renamed it "Ragdale Park" in honor of Mayor I. N. Ragdale.

Of the $410,000 purchase price, Fulton county has agreed to pay $60,000 in cash, $20,000 in three equal divided annual installments and to place bonds for development purposes at 18-hole golf courses or one 36-hole and playground department.

Tentative plans provide for an 18-hole golf course, and councilman John A. White, of the fourth ward, and chairman of the parks committee, has suggested that the city establish two 18-hole golf courses or one 36-hole and playground department.

Only one payment has been made under the sales contract thus far, the county having paid its first $20,000. This was used by W. T. Perkerson, representative of the I. N. Perkerson committee. Asked for Cronheim's account, Tally presented another set of sheets, which the attorneys and the committee also studied. Branch then announced he had a copy of the commission contract in which Ford, Cronheim and Smith figured.

Contract Presented. Attorney Branch called C. M. Ford to the stand and then handed Ford a paper. It proved to be a copy of the commission contract in which Ford, Cronheim and Smith figured.

Asked if that was his signature, Branch asked, "Is that your signature?" Branch asked, "Is this the contract?"

"Yes," Ford replied. "Is this the contract?" "Yes," Ford replied.

Councilman John M. White, member of the investigation committee, expressed the opinion to reporters that this contract would void the Perkerson deal.

Attorney Paul S. Etheridge took over the witness. "This is dated July 1, 1927, and signed August 3, 1927," he stated. "Who has the contract?" "Mr. Cronheim," Ford replied. "He is the one I signed for."

"Do you have a copy?" Etheridge asked. "No," said Ford.

Attorney Branch read the contract to the committee, in substance relating that the contract was signed July 1, 1927, between J. A. Smith as the party of the first part, and Cronheim and Ford as parties of the second part, and that, as Smith had obtained the Perkerson tract for the city, the parties were to become each one-third owners of the option. Further, Branch read, the contract agrees that for their services, the parties of the second part were to receive one-third each of the net commission to be paid by the city to the city of Atlanta.

Branch said the contract provided that any item of expense incurred by the city should be borne equally by the three men. The contract was signed August 1, 1927, and was witnessed by A. J. McBride, he said.

Wanted Name in Pot. Ford, continuing his testimony, said that when he signed the contract it was to get his name "in the pot" in the belief that the city would not buy the tract. His knowledge of the city finances led him to believe Atlanta could not meet the stipulations of the contract, he said.

Branch asked Ford: "Why did you have your brother cash that $5,000 check?" Ford answered: "My brother and I exchange checks every day, espe-

Pickens, who said he deals in mortgage loans, insurance and real estate. He was asked by Branch if, at any time this summer, he saw Councilman Harry York speak to Cronheim in front of the office of Rankin and Whitman's office when Cronheim and York passed. Cronheim spoke to him. I do not recall what was said. In fact I am not sure that they engaged in conversation. I do not know if there was anyone with York."

A. G. Mathews, representing the Fourth National bank, was called to the stand. Attorney Branch asked him, ever, said he wanted to ask Beckham a few questions and the witness was recalled.

Etheridge asked: "If you had said that he got $200 would you have heard it?" Beckham replied: "I had some important appraisals to discuss with Cronheim and I don't recall hearing what they said."

Ford's Account Offered. Mathews then called on his testimony and furnished E. A. Ford's account in transcript form from January 1928 to August 1927 of his bank account. It showed a balance of $26,161.99 on March 27, $25,161.99.

"Have you any of the cancelled checks?" Branch asked. "No," he was replied.

A. C. Rothmore, of the Pryor street branch of the Atlanta & Lowry National bank, was called to the stand, and produced the bank account of A. Smith. Rothmore said that it was a new account started at $5,000 on March 27, $5,161.99.

"This does not show whether it was cash or checks?" Branch asked. "No, but the deposit slip would," Rothmore replied.

C. R. Gholson, of Turman-Brown company, was called to the stand. Gholson, on direction, handed over C. M. Ford's commission to the Perkerson tract, and after a moment's study, Branch asked: "What amounts did Ford draw, starting January 1, 1928?"

Gholson read from the account, and cited, from day to day, amounts drawn on the account, all of them in the amount of $40 on each day listed. "For what reason were the $40 items paid?" Branch asked.

"Cash on hand," Gholson replied. Attorney Etheridge objected to the question, contending that the matter was not material and that such things would pile up the record until it would take a month to read it.

The question was very material, Branch replied. "This committee that he took $4,000 in cash and carelessly carried it in his pocket, and that he turned over $5,000 to his brother, and he can't tell what he did with it, and he was used to handling that amount every day."

Etheridge replied: "Mr. Ford said that the money was his. He said, 'I take issue on that.' Branch continued. "When a city official engages in business secretly and privately, and he can't tell what he did with it, and he was used to handling that amount every day."

Under orders from the committee Mr. Gholson gave a good description as possible from the record of the source of the money. He said that with small transactions and showed no entry of the Perkerson park deal.

Questioned on Park Sale. Q. "The Perkerson tract had been turned in at your office, you would have the record, wouldn't you?" A. "Yes."

Attaches of the city attorney's office reported they had been unable to serve George Brown, Jr., president of the Turman-Brown Realty company, with a subpoena when Mr. Branch called for the witness.

Former Councilman Frank Calloway, of the tenth ward, was called to the stand, and Mr. Branch resumed the questioning.

Q. "Did you ever have a talk with Mr. Ford about the Perkerson tract?" A. "No. Not that I recall. I did have one with Mr. Smith."

Q. "I asked him whether it was a real estate deal or a community project which he was asking me to support. He said there was no commission going to anyone."

Q. "Was that ever stated on the floor of city council when the matter was up before it?" A. "I don't recall such a statement. Mr. Smith is not a member of council."

Mr. Etheridge took the witness over. Q. "At the time the Mr. Smith told you that, the option had never been secured had it?" A. "No. It was in process, however. It was in the spring of last year."

Ford's Brother Testifies. E. A. Ford, Councilman Ford's brother, who deposited one of the four $5,000 cashier's checks paid as the commission on the deal, was then called to the stand.

His bank record had already been submitted, and he produced his cancelled checks, showing he testified that about $3,850 of the $5,000 had been paid to Councilman Ford.

A clash between the witness and Branch occurred when the latter attempted to elicit an explanation of certain checks and what they were for, but Ford showed a willingness to discuss several checks made out to Cash, and which he stated he delivered to his brother.

Under examination Mr. Ford admitted that his testimony at the first hearing that the $5,000 check was given to him by J. A. Smith was wrong and that he received it from his brother.

Q. "When he (Charles Ford) gave you the check, what did he tell you?" A. "He said handle it."

Q. "Is that all?" A. "Yes."

Q. "How did you handle it?" A. "I deposited it in the bank."

Q. "Then what did you do with it?" A. "I drew part of it out and gave it to my brother. He owed me $500."

Q. "What did you do with the $500?" A. "I deposited it in the bank."

Q. "Then what did you do with it?" A. "I drew part of it out and gave it to my brother. He owed me $500."

you saw the commission agreement on the matter first came up and now he had two prominent lawyers, Cronheim replied that he did not at that time, but who he wanted to see what Ford was trying to put over he found it necessary."

"You became scared, eh?" White asked. Hartsfield then requested all members of the committee to refrain from expressing their viewpoints. Cronheim said he wanted to ask White a question. "You are appointed on a committee to investigate, and you expect witnesses to give the facts?"

"Yes," White replied. "You threaten a witness with a $50,000 suit and expect him to tell the truth," Cronheim said.

White asked Cronheim, "Is it true that you named the councilman Saturday to draw the fire off ourselves and throw it into council, to which Cronheim replied: "I told that because I was asked for facts."

Councilman Barrett asked Cronheim why he gave $1,000.00 as a part of the money to bribe councilmen?" to which Branch objected as not being a fair question, for "there is not anything in Cronheim's testimony to base the question on."

Barrett changed his question, and asked if he only received $5,000, Cronheim replied that was the amount he was promised to start with.

Discovery of Contract. Considerable testimony was devoted to the finding of the commission contract by Cronheim. A. J. McBride testified that he witnessed the signatures on the document, and that he did not see the three men sign but that when he was called in to witness the signing of the commission contract, McBride said there were three copies, Miss M. White, stenographer in Cronheim's office, admitted writing the contract, and that it was made in triplicate, but she did not see it signed, nor had she heard any conversations relative to the negotiations of the commission contract at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon in an old office, she said.

When Ford and Smith called on Cronheim, the conversations took place in the private office, she said. Etheridge said he wanted the certified copy of the resolution of council proposing to lease the tract included in the record. Hartsfield then told the official stenographer to put into the record the lease paper and other related papers into the record, as well as the commission agreement contract, transcripts of the bank accounts of E. A. Ford, C. M. Ford, S. P. Cronheim, Inc., J. A. Smith and the commission account of C. M. Ford with Turman & Brown into the record. The committee then recessed.

Chairman Hartsfield called the session to order after a short recess and stated that the committee was ready to close its investigation into the park purchase.

Asks For All Evidence. "But before we do so," Mr. Hartsfield said, "I am addressing myself to everyone in this room and to everyone within hearing of my voice. Does anyone here know anything more about the matter that this committee is investigating, or does anyone know of anyone who knows anything more about this matter which should come before this committee?"

"If so, this committee wants to hear it. We do not want to close this investigation if there is anyone who knows anything about the matter. This investigation has been pushed to the utmost, and it has been embarrassing, but I want to say on behalf of my colleagues on this committee that we have conducted this investigation into this matter without fear or favor, no matter where it went or how it went in an effort to ascertain the truth."

"Since I hear no one who has any further information to bring before this committee, this investigation is closed. We will await the preparation of the official record until I call the committee together to prepare our report."

Chairman Hartsfield after adjournment, stated that it would probably take two weeks to transcribe the official report of the proceedings.

"This testimony has been extremely voluminous," he said. "The official reporter told me tonight that he had taken down 90,000 words prior to the meeting tonight. Ten thousand words a day is all that he can transcribe. It will take possibly two weeks of steady work, he tells me, before the official record can be ready."

The Taming of Elizabeth

By WINIFRED BOGGS

SYNOPSIS.

The young Elizabeth is the adored daughter of Tim and Elizabeth Darcy. When she is four years old she runs away from home to avoid punishment for getting into mischief. She is brought home promptly by a neighbor, Miss Smiley.

At 12, Elizabeth runs away again, this time from school and to the home of her Aunt Doty, in London. Doty, who is almost as flighty as the young Elizabeth, sympathizes with her niece, much to the irritation of her stepson, Stephen Whitby. After the death of her parents Elizabeth goes to live with her aunt. During the war they keep themselves busy and also amused by performing in amateur theatricals for the benefit of wounded soldiers. Stephen, home on leave, is asked by his stepmother to bring Mark Lennox, a young playwright, to one of their performances. Shortly after the end of the war Mrs. Whitby dies suddenly in Brighton, and Elizabeth learns to the consternation of her aunt that her aunt had frittered away the money left her by her husband, and had also disposed of some of Stephen's inheritance as well. Afraid to face Stephen after this revelation, Elizabeth decides to go to Mark Lennox in London and ask him to get her a job on the stage. Stephen finds her with Mark and, although his business has failed, he offers to help her. She refuses his help and advice, and takes a part in Mark's new play. On the opening night she gets stage fright, and runs off, leaving a note under the door over her part. Miss Smiley, who happens to be in London visiting her cousin, Mrs. White, sees Elizabeth on the street and takes her to Mrs. White's house. The latter offers her a job as cook and Elizabeth accepts. But she fails in this job, too, and then lands a job as a maid at an old lady in the country, Julian Vestington. The old lady's grandniece, makes the arrangements with Elizabeth. Elizabeth, who shows attention upon her young companion, but the girl misses youthful companionship and a mystery about the house.

INSTALLMENT XLVII.

A Broken Spirit.

Elizabeth understood in some curious, fashion exactly what these helpless young swans had suffered; how the thing had fastened upon them, drained them drop by drop of vitality and blood, the increasing weakness, the passing into a vast shadowy world. "It's what is happening to me," she thought. "I am being drained, something has fastened on to me, won't be satisfied till it's had all of me." She looked down on the hand on her arm, shook it off panic stricken, gave a shrill cry of terror:

"O, I cannot bear it, I am so frightened, so frightened . . . she wept.

"Don't be silly, child! What a fuss about nothing. The swan will lay other eggs; there will be other eggs."

"But they won't be the same eggs, never the same, it is too late for them . . . to late for everything, I think," and turning she stumbled blindly towards the house.

That night she went to her drawer where all her worldly wealth was kept, and counted it. She could not send the 24 pounds anonymously to Stephen from Moundly Hollow, because he would at once guess from whom it came and be very angry with her, probably send it back; perhaps without a line to accompany his curt refusal. Or would he spend it on something for her? Twenty-five pounds, not quite earned yet since the third month was not quite up, but almost earned. What a lot it might have meant had she been entitled to keep it! For that sum she could have gone back to Miss Cole's room and lived there quite a long time, until she had found other, and more congenial, occupation. Yet if she did that, she would hardly be able to avoid Stephen altogether; he would insist upon introducing her to his widow, expect her to fall down and worship. "And I won't!" she thought sullenly.

"And what's more, if her hair or complexion is ever a little faded I shall tell him! It's his duty to warn me when they're so blind, and entirely for their own good. At least one can trust black hair—even if it is hideous." She looked discontentedly at her own image. What a pallid face, sunken reddened eyes! What a fright, but she did not even care about that now! She would be a fright if she wanted to be!

For the first time she went to bed without saying her rather childish prayers, for it had been her unbroken habit since she was old enough to say prayers at all, to ask in a frank, friendly fashion for everything she wanted, even rather absurd things. Common sense told her she could not get all or even many of the boons requested; at the same time it could do no harm.

Tonight she crawled into bed like some weary, broken thing, telling herself rather childishly that she felt

"too annoyed with God about Stephen's widow" to send up the most humble petition.

Mrs. Vestington frowned at her haggard appearance next morning. "What on earth is wrong with you?" she demanded sharply. "You look half dead."

"I don't think the place suits me," blurted out the girl. "I think I . . . I have better go. Mrs. Vestington, just see, if I get ill I shall be more trouble than I am worth."

"You're not ill save in your own imagination. Pull yourself together, child. How am I to take you abroad looking like that?"

"I didn't know you were taking me abroad," replied the girl listlessly, crumpling her bread.

"While it was all fixed up and only circumstances over which I had no control prevented it!" She spoke sharply. "Surely you haven't lost interest even in that. Surely you're not going to turn out like those others, just when I was really suited at last, and thought I had got some one permanent. You will be yourself in a week, then we can see what the continent and a little gaiety will do."

"She will not let me go," thought Elizabeth, but she did not very much care. Nothing was worth fighting for when body and brain were just one weary ache of exhaustion. Then she had a curious feeling about it all, something she could not put into words. "It was as if the same thing had happened before, and was to happen again; as if experience was but an echo of what had been and had to be."

Mechanically she paced up and down the garden with Mrs. Vestington, keeping pace with the light, quick steps with difficulty; seeing nothing, feeling nothing; conscious of a great emptiness. "It's as if I am not really there," she thought. Then she had another morbid fancy. She was a prisoner taking daily exercise; a shadowy warder kept pace with her, watching every movement, fearing a dart for freedom.

To the big iron gates and back again; round the kitchen garden, back to the big iron gates, and Blossom keeping watch and ward in her little window. Blossom! Had she once been like a blossom, young, with the sap running richly in her veins; that now this? Elizabeth shivered.

"How old is Blossom?" she asked abruptly.

"I do not know," Mrs. Vestington spoke curtly. She always hated to discuss age. "She was a servant under the former owner and I took her on."

"Then she lived in the asylum once?" What things she must know, that woman with the terrible face?

"I suppose so. She is lucky to have such an easy post now, answering the gate."

"But there is never anything or anybody to answer," returned Elizabeth. "Everything is certainly very convenient," said Mrs. Vestington. When they returned to the gates for the third time Blossom had come out of her tiny domain and was shaking her head, mumbling to herself. Mrs. Vestington seated herself on the stump of a tree. "Run indoors, Elizabeth, and take your eggflip," she ordered. "I will wait here till you return."

The girl went unwillingly. How she hated these "pick-me-ups" and tonics, and how little her dislike availed her. Mrs. Brown would bring it herself, stand there till she saw the glass empty. When she returned to the lodge the old woman was still engaged with her rug, but Mrs. Vestington had gone.

The mistress said to go straight to her in the kitchen garden," she said in a tone of insolent command; "there's the beans to be picked."

Instead of obeying Elizabeth sat down on the tree-stump. She felt too weak to wander about any more, and more than a little sick. Heart, head and body, all ached intolerably. "You'd best not keep her waiting," said the old woman.

Her eyes are like a snake's," thought the girl; they sort of fascinate you, make you feel helpless. She looked into them again, and was startled by an odd thought, "Why should she hate me?"

Blossom spoke suddenly, her voice full of venom. "Queer your name should be the same as hers . . . and him not here."

Elizabeth's heart gave a sickening jerk. She knew so well to what the woman alluded. The same hair and eyes and now the same name. It was rather horrible somehow; brought it home to one, merged one into that other so that they became not two but one.

REYNOLDS ADVOCATES HIGHWAY BOND ISSUE

Waycross, Ga., August 23.—(AP)—I am in perfect harmony with Judge Harry D. Reed's proposal that we should have a thirty million dollar road bond issue, in order that the people of Georgia might see the advantage of this method of road construction over the present hop-skip-and-jump plan which is carried out largely at the expense of the individual counties.

This is the statement made here today by Frank T. Reynolds, assistant to the president of the Dinkler Hotels company, and one of the greatest road boosters in Georgia.

"It is a state proposition," Mr. Reynolds said in his discussion of Georgia highways, "and I believe that the people of the state are coming around to this point of view very rapidly."

Mr. Reynolds stressed the necessity of getting down to some definite basis on which to construct highways, pointing out that the problem in Georgia is bigger than in any other state east of the Mississippi. Georgia, he emphasizes, is the largest state this side the Mississippi. It has 57 rivers, 115 creeks and 10 islands.

WARE COUNTY LOYAL TO NATIONAL TICKET

Waycross, Ga., August 23.—(Special.)—Dr. W. F. Reavis, president of the Ware County Democratic club, announced today that the membership in this club is growing daily and that every indication is that this county will go for the democratic national ticket by more than a two-to-one majority.

Dr. Reavis is emphasizing that the club is being formed not alone for the present campaign but as an organization to battle in future years for the dominance of democratic principles in Georgia.

The official staff of the club will be announced soon and it is already known that many of the most prominent democrats in the city and county have accepted official positions.

WOMAN IS INJURED ON SECOND EFFORT TO OPERATE AUTO

Mrs. S. P. Lindley, of a Ben Hill road address, in East Point, suffered a fractured arm Thursday afternoon when an automobile which she was learning to drive plunged over an embankment near her home. Mrs. B. K. Leverette, a friend, who was with her as instructor, was painfully bruised while Ruth, 2-year-old daughter of Mrs. Lindley, escaped unharmed.

The injured woman was carried to Grady hospital by C. H. Gheesling, of 408 Windsor street. "It was my second lesson," Mrs. Lindley said. "We went out yesterday and got along just fine and I was doing well today until something suddenly seemed to go wrong and we went over the bank. I don't know whether I will take up my lessons again or not."

The board also will select the next convention city.

Fair Weather Is Promised Atlanta Today

Fair weather was forecast for today by C. F. von Herrmann, United States meteorologist, under the encouraging influence of the bright sun.

Light of Thursday, Mr. von Herrmann made this forecast cautiously, however, by adding that the fair weather may be followed by thunder-showers. The Washington forecast says: "Fair in south; local thunder-showers in north portion."

Mostly fair weather prevails in the cotton belt and many of the eastern states, except that showers were reported along the Atlantic coast, the weather man said. Temperatures remain unchanged in the cotton belt, but cooler weather has appeared in the far northwest.

FORD FINANCING COMPANY OPENS ATLANTA BRANCH

Atlanta purchasers of new Ford cars and purchasers in all communities included in the territory covered by the Atlanta branch of the Ford Motor company, may now have their time payments financed through a specialized financial institution authorized and sponsored by the Ford Motor company.

This announcement was made Thursday by the Universal Credit company, formed by the Ford Motor company to provide a uniform time payment plan throughout the United States. Under this plan, Ford owners may buy their cars on time at lowest cost commensurate with sound business policy, officials said. The Atlanta branch of the Universal Credit company will be located at 101 Marietta street.

Local officials stated that extremely low cost was one of the important features of the credit plan. They also stated that the plan contemplates purchase by the Universal Credit company of sound and adequate fire and theft insurance protecting the joint interests of the purchaser, the dealer and the company in the car.

Establishment of the Universal Credit company plan already has created national interest on the part of Ford dealers and purchasers. The company is opening branch offices as rapidly as possible in large cities from coast to coast. It embraces not only the sale of Ford cars, delivery cars, trucks and Lincoln cars, but also can be adapted to the sale of Ford tractors and Ford tri-motor all metal airplanes.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

A PAINFUL LESSON.
By Thornton W. Burgess.

Widow Mrs. Yowler must oft obtain Through experience of pain.

Mrs. Yowler was a watchful mother. The two young Yowlers were getting big enough now to go venturing for themselves more or less. That is to say, they would in the dusk of early evening go hunt for wood mice around the ledges where their home was. They didn't have to be taught to hunt. The love of hunting and the knowledge of how to hunt was born in them. You see, their father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Yowler, are famous hunters.

At first they had been satisfied to hunt such things as beetles and other large insects. They would pounce on these just as Black Pussy would pounce on a mouse. They would utter funny little fierce growls. But as they grew bigger insects were too small game. One day their mother brought them a young hare. Another time she brought them a young grouse. After that they were always looking for young hares and young grouse.

But even when they were, as they supposed, hunting by themselves, their mother would keep a watchful eye on them. She had way of suddenly appearing just in time to show them how to do a thing, or to warn them against doing a thing. But she could not be everywhere at the time, for she herself had to hunt, and so they had to learn some lessons for themselves.

It happened one evening that while mother was off hunting the two kittens had strayed a little farther than usual. Presently they heard a strange rustling sound. It frightened them, yet it filled them with curiosity. They flattened themselves on the ground behind a fallen tree trunk. They looked the ground as only kittens or cats can. Never before had they seen any one like this. He was grunting to himself fretfully. He had a fur coat with long hair, but in that hair there seemed to be something that rattled and rustled. The kittens couldn't understand it at all. The stranger climbed up on one end of that tree trunk and began to slowly walk along it. Behind him he dragged a queer, rather broad, stubby tail. He didn't try to hold it up. He looked neither this way nor that way. He wouldn't have seen the kittens if he looked right at them, for they were so motionless that it would have taken sharper eyes than those of the stranger to have found them.

And how those kittens did stare! The stranger was too big for them to think of attacking him. But even to their inexperience he appeared to be a stupid fellow. Certainly no one like that could run fast. At the thought of this the spirit of mischief entered into one of those kittens. The stranger had stopped and was now sitting back to the kittens, his tail hanging down in front of them in the most provoking manner. The mischievous kitten stood just as long as he could. Then he reached out with one paw and cuffed that hanging tail. He didn't cuff but once. No sir, he didn't cuff that tail but once! Then he gave vent to a screech that so startled his sister that the latter ran all the way to the home den in the ledge of rocks as fast as her legs could take her. You see, the owner of that tantalizing tail was none other than Prickly Porky the Porcupine. (Copyright, 1928, for The Constitution.)
